March 19, 2020

A Message to Our Valued Clients,

As our nation and the capital markets respond to the evolving conditions related to the Coronavirus (COVID-19) pandemic, we want to reassure you that B. Riley Wealth Management's commitment to serving our clients has never been stronger. Over the past few weeks, our financial advisors have proactively reached out to their clients to answer questions, calm nerves and adjust investment strategies when appropriate for individual circumstances. And we're pleased to be able to share the experienced insight of our Chief Investment Strategist, Paul Dietrich, through his regular market commentaries [found in Market Insights].

Of course, the well-being of our B. Riley Wealth colleagues across the country has been a top priority for our management team. For their health and safety, we have instituted an optional work from home policy and put in place all the technological support necessary to continue to serve our clients without disruption or limitation. As further precaution, corporate travel has been postponed and conference calls have replaced in-person meetings, in line with social distancing recommendations.

Many of our branch offices are in large metropolitan areas and multi-tenant office buildings, so we anticipate that access to outside visitors will be limited and eventually building closures may occur. If necessary, we are prepared to shift to a fully remote operation to support all essential operations and fulfill our obligation to serve our clients' needs.

It's important to remember that B. Riley Wealth Management is a subsidiary of B. Riley Financial, Inc., a large, diversified and well-capitalized financial services firm. And our clearing partners, Wells Fargo Clearing Services and National Financial Services, are well positioned to support our financial advisors and clients throughout these unprecedented times.

Now, more than ever, the value of personal relationships and advice from a trusted partner are so important. We appreciate the trust you have put in B. Riley Wealth Management and ensure you of our ongoing commitment to keep you informed. We encourage you to make sure that your contact information is up to date by confirming the email and phone number associated with your online account (Log in to Access Online here, then locate contact information under the Customer Service tab).

Please don't hesitate to contact your financial advisor should you have any questions.

Sincerely,

Philip Zanone
CEO

Chuck Hastings
President